The Education Center

AT JOHN DE LA HOWE

The Aggie Adventure is a summer program designed for 8th and 9th grade students who are interested in agriculture. Students will spend 3 days and 2 nights immersed in agricultural education at the South Carolina Governor's School for Agriculture at John de la Howe. A state-funded, public, residential high school, the Governor's School for Agriculture allows students to receive hand-on training in the fields of agriculture, agribusiness, forestry, land management, food science, and more.
